

ABSTRACT

A driver having an interrupt service routine including an interrupt handler and at least two deferred procedure calls. Each of the at least two deferred procedure calls is associated with a particular interrupt event or type of interrupt event. If multiple interrupt events occur, the interrupt events may be concurrently processed on separate deferred procedure calls, resulting in a substantially reduced interrupt handling latency.